DR. PRICE'S

ALGRAIN

FOOD

It is a perfect food for any person as it contains all the elements of which the body is composed. Made from WHEAT, OATS, RICE and BARLEY, it provides material for growth. Its tendency is laxative, consequently useful in cases of constipation. Upon this food life could be sustained for an indefinite period, as it is a food in just the right proportion to sustain all the life forces of the system. Ask your Grocer.

MERCHANTS THE VICTIMS AGAIN

Woman Soliciting for "Report Card" That Will Never Be Used.

Superintendent F. M. Martin announces that the public schools of the city have nothing whatever to do with a scheme now being worked among the merchants of the city by a woman for advertising on a report card supposed to be for distribution weekly among the parents of the school children. "The public schools of El Paso are prohibited from using any cards with advertising of any character upon them," he declared.

"Merchants have telephoned me that a woman has been soliciting advertising from them to go on a card that she claims will be sent out weekly to parents of the city giving reports of the standing of the children," said Mr. Martin. "The public schools have nothing whatever to do with such a plan and it has not even been discussed with us. We are prohibited from using such cards anyhow."

RIO GRANDE STREET GRADING

Work of grading Rio Grande street is to be continued at once, said J. G. McNary, this afternoon. "Three blocks were graded and then the paving company had to wait for the city engineer to give it the other grades before it could continue the work."

"We hope to start the planting of trees within a week. We will plant the trees as soon as the grading is finished and then build the parkway around them. When the street is finished it will be the prettiest in the city."

HAS ARM CRUSHED OFF UNDER CAR

J. J. Payne, Railroad Man, Attempts to Board Train; Misses Footing.

While attempting to board the Drummers' Special on the El Paso and Southwestern at 7:15 Saturday night, J. J. Payne, formerly employed as a conductor on the Southern Pacific and also a former employee of the Southwestern, fell and had his arm crushed off just below the elbow.

The Arm Almost Severed.

The accident occurred just west of Oregon street. Mr. Payne was going south on Oregon street intending to go to the union station to see a friend who was leaving town, and thought he would catch the train and ride down so as to get there before his friend's train left the yards. In making the attempt his foot slipped, throwing him under the wheels, and before he could free himself the wheel caught his left arm.

He cried out to some one standing near by to get an ambulance, as he had cut his arm off. He was carried into J. A. Robertson's drug store at 407 North Oregon street, a short distance from where the accident occurred, and had his arm temporarily dressed and had stimulants administered him until the ambulance could be called. He was then taken to Hotel Dieu where the arm was amputated.

His mother lives in Los Angeles, Cal., where Payne was former yardmaster for the Southern Pacific. His wife called on him Saturday night at the hospital although it is said he has not been living with her of late.

SOUTHWESTERN TO BUILD TO TUCSON

Dr. James Douglas Tells Arizona Audience That Is the Intention.

Dr. James Douglas, before leaving Arizona addressed a packed house at the Orpheum theater, "Transcontinental Lines," and from his remarks the trend of the future plans of the El Paso and Southwestern were secured.

He stated that the original plans of the Santa Fe were to pass through the San Pedro valley and develop that section of the country, which the Southwestern later did. Then he told of the progress of the Southwestern, the construction of the line from the Copper Queen mines at Bisbee to Fairbank, then on to Benson, to Douglas to connect with the mines at Nacozari, etc.

At this time," he said, "the E. P. & S. W. has no intention to make a coast connection. Tucson is at present more valuable as a terminal than Benson, and in a short time it is expected the road will be built through to Tucson."

He then discussed the possibility of building on to Phoenix and further developing the rich country thereabouts, but stated that that would not be taken right away. He then reiterated, to this effect:

QUITS RAILROAD TO ENTER BANK

Charles E. Walker Resigns Position With Arizona Eastern.

Tucson, Ariz., Feb. 28.—At a meeting of the directors of the Arizona Eastern and the Southern Pacific Railroad company of Mexico, which was held here Saturday, the resignation of Charles E. Walker, secretary and treasurer of these lines was tendered and accepted, effective March 15. Mr. Walker, who has been with the Randolph lines of the Southwestern for the past six years, resigned in order to accept the position of assistant to the president of the Consolidated National bank of this city. He will take up his new duties on March 1. His successor has not yet been officially announced.

The new official of the Consolidated National is a native of Bloomington,

For the Woman Who Has Beautiful Hair

(New York Theatrical News).

The beauties in the Anna Held chorus are famous for their pulchritude. Their coiffures add a great deal to their charms. How they can "manage" such abundance of beautiful tresses day in and day out, keeping always the same well-groomed appearance, is beyond the ken of the average woman. But, listen while I whisper, these girls depend altogether upon dry shampooing to keep their hair fine and glossy.

They mix 4 ounces of powdered orris root with 4 ounces of ether, and they are prepared for a season's shampooing. Once or twice a week they sprinkle a tablespoonful of this mixture on the head and then brush the powder well through the hair. That is all there is to it, and they have escaped the bother and discomfort that accompany washing, rinsing and drying the hair, together with the danger of catching cold.

The wonderful results they achieve with ether convinces me that it is the only thing that can grow hair, for their hair is long and abundant in addition to being fluffy and lustrous.

Those Corpuscles

In your blood, red and white, keep you well if they are healthy, cause you sickness if diseased.

To make and keep them abundant and healthy, is to have pure blood, freedom from disease and vigorous health.

The chief purpose of Hood's Sarsaparilla is to do this, and its success is attested by thousands of wonderful cures. Cures of all blood diseases, scrofula, eczema, rheumatism, catarrh.

Get it today in the usual liquid form or in chocolate tablet form called Sarsatabs.

Ind., and during his railroad career has been connected with the Lake Erie and Western, at Indianapolis, the Cotton Belt, at Waco, and with the El Paso and Northeastern at Alamogordo, N. M., as chief clerk to W. R. Martin, of El Paso, then general manager of that line. He has been associated with the Randolph lines since 1904, occupying the position of secretary, treasurer and purchasing agent at the present time.

Arrangements are being made for increasing the capital stock of the bank from $50,000 to $100,000 and the surplus will also be increased in the same amount.

ROCK ISLAND ROAD ISSUES ANNUAL ITINERARY OF WHITE SOX

The third annual tour of the Chicago White Sox to the Pacific coast, 1910, is the title of a new pamphlet issued by the Rock Island system.

The pamphlet is issued in folder form, with a picture of Charles A. Comiskey, president of the Chicago club, in lithograph on the cover page.

An illustration of the new White Sox ball park in Chicago, that is reported to have cost $500,000, and is said to be the finest ball park in the world, follows photo engravings of all the leading baseball men in the United States and their records, which are carefully compiled.

The personnel of the Chicago club, diagram of the route of the Rock Island White Sox special, with dates of games to be played by both squads are also given.

The names, with a short biographical sketch of the members of the White Sox follows, also brief descriptions of the important cities and towns on the route of the White Sox special, giving the population, altitude, etc.

The White Sox will be in El Paso, March 30-31.

G. H. & S. A. IMPROVES APPEARANCE OF YARDS

The street gates and switch targets in the local G. H. yards were recently painted. The little parklets just west of the old depot are finished and watered down, and when planted in Burnside grass will be a nice addition to that part of the company's property on Main street.

DEADHEAD PRIVATE CAR.

The private car "National de Mexico" is in the union station yards, and is being dead-headed from Los Angeles to Mexico City.

ABOUT RAILROAD PEOPLE.

Paul McComb, a Texas and Pacific railroad man, was in the city lately looking after his business interests here.

P. J. Guilane, chief clerk of the local Pullman office, has returned from Douglas, where he went to see Hamilton fly.

Miss Edwards, daughter of Harry Edwards, an employee of the G. H. car shops, is visiting with her family this week.

Eugene Demier, a former railroad man in El Paso, but now in business in Arizona, spent last week visiting with W. J. Sickles, of this city.

W. E. Hodges, vice president and purchasing agent of the Santa Fe system, arrived over the Mexican Central from Mexico City this morning.

E. O. Faulkner, manager of the tile and timber department, of the Santa Fe system, arrived in El Paso in company with vice president Hodges.

Wm. Withold, formerly an engineer on the Texas and Pacific, is running the boilers and machinery at the Harvey house, in the absence of the regular man who is visiting in San Antonio with his family.

RAPID RAMBLER VISITS EL PASO

This Young Man Says He Has Traveled 532,000 Miles and Is Only Twenty-six.

Another one of the "don't pay any fare" travelers has hit El Paso. He calls himself "Penn, the Rapid Rambler," and says he has been around the world three times, which is modest to say the least.

He also says that E. H. Harriman once bet him a thousand dollars that he couldn't beat his way from Boston to San Francisco and that he won the pile. Of course, everybody knows Harriman had a habit of doing things like that.

Penn has a nice story about jumping out of the third story of the parental home in Pittsburg and running away when he was a very tiny boy and further ventures that a nice little girl is waiting there to marry him and that his family is wealthy, although he does not hesitate to ask for a handout and boasts that he never paid but $2 for railroad fare.

He says he writes books of his experiences and that he publishes them in the list of best sellers, or even second best sellers. He came here from "Zan-couber, B. C.," he says, and is bound for New Orleans this time. He says his name in real life is Frank C. Welch, and claims to have traveled 532,000 miles, but if he has, it has been some rapid rambling. Indeed, for Mister Welch says he is only 26 years of age at present.

TO PRISON FOR THIRTY YEARS

CHAPTER II
"She ain't got it. She told yer so." "She ain't, ain't she! Dyer believe that dope, yer bughouse? Besides, if she ain't it's up to her to get it. That's all."

"Well," commented the Duke disgustedly, "I ain't knowed yer was several kinds of things, but I never thought you was a bloomin' sneak."

"I don't see what youse want ter butt in fer anyway," declared the Shrimp, waxing angry in turn. "It ain't none o' your funeral. Why don't yer pay it yerself if yer so blamed anxious about it? I wouldn't believe dat girl under oath. She can't have me fer no sucker."

"When you speaks of a lardy before me--henny lardy, d'yer 'ear? You speak respectful," commanded the Duke, with dangerous dignity and quietness.

"Nora a lady! Aw, come off! Yer gives me de willies wid yer airs," retorted the Shrimp. "I have a hunch yer stuck on her, yer chump."

The idea seemed to tickle him. "Stuck on Nora! Oh, lor! Look who's stuck on her," he chuckled. "The Duke in love an' stuck on Nora!"

And he burst into a roar of uncontrollable laughter.

"Strike me dead! You s'y that ag'in an' I'll pull yer boko," said the Duke, going over to him menacingly.

The next moment a young girl entered the stable. It was plain from her demeanor that she was not pleased.

"You boys are a perfect nuisance," she complained. "I've been calling you the last ten minutes. Breakfast's been ready for an hour."

The Shrimp turned his head and scowled at her.

"Oh, all right!" he growled.

Further argument was prevented by the advent of Mallory, accompanied by Mr. Crawford and O'Brien.

"Fur hiv'n's sake, but I thought you boys was at breakfast long ago," said O'Brien. "Y'd better git over to the house at wanst, or it's precious little ye'll be gittin', I'm afther thinkin'."

The boys slipped out, and Nora would gladly have followed them, but her father stopped her.

"Me daughter, Mr. Crawford, sor; me daughter, Nora," he explained, his honest, ruddy face beaming with pride.

Nora blushed and, with downcast gaze, stood before the stranger.

Crawford, with easy politeness, doffed his hat.

"I am awfully pleased to meet you, Miss Nora," he said in a soft, low voice, adding, "You are very fortunate to have such a charming daughter, Mr. O'Brien."

The old man regarded the visitor with a dubiousness which was quickly succeeded by positive disapproval. He did not like this sudden change from the brisk business manner with which Crawford had previously comported himself, and somehow the man's intonation and attitude jarred upon him, struck a discordant note in his heart.

As to Nora, encouraged by the unaccustomed gentleness and courtness of his speech, the girl ventured to look at him, and as timidly she held out her hand and he clasped it with a warm pressure she encountered his gaze of mingled amusement and admiration.

Nora's eyes were large and dark and expressive. Crawford thought he had never seen any more beautiful. But they were not by any means the girl's only charm. She was distinctly pretty, with small, regular features and a bluish rose complexion which her dark hair, worn in a braid down her back, set off to the best possible advantage. Although barely seventeen, she was well developed, and her plain cotton dress, white, with thin stripes, was becoming in its very simplicity. In a word, she looked just what she was--a sweet, naive country lassie.

"I'm sure we shall be good friends," he said encouragingly.

"Y-yes, sir," she stammered, reddening still deeper, and hastily withdrawing her hand, she made her escape.
